SAY
THIS

God can do the impossible.

DO
THIS

BED TIME

Is there something in your life that seems impossible? Facing something big like that can make you feel helpless. But here's the awesome thing to remember: God can do anything! You can live with confidence knowing that God can take away that obstacle in front of you or maybe carry you right through it. Pray that God will help you see how big He is so that you can live with confidence in Him.

REMEMBER THIS

"I remain confident of this: I will see the goodness of the Lord in the land of the living."

Psalm 27:13, NIV

MAKING THE MOST OF DRIVE TIME

By Sarah Anderson

My parents live in northern Virginia. We live in Georgia. So when it comes to visiting my family, we've spent a lot of time in the car. Only minutes into our 12-hour-road trip, my kids would always ask the dreaded question, "How much longer 'til we get there?"

For a lot of parents, and for a lot of kids, drive time is a necessary evil we have to endure before arriving at our final destination: the grandparents house, the soccer game, the carpool line, the grocery store, church, or wherever else. But drive time can become an opportunity when we infuse meaning into the every day moments we have with our kids.

When you think about it, time in the car is packed full of potential. You are literally stuck in the same space with your kids as you drive from point A to point B. But this doesn't have to be a death sentence. In fact, if you turn down the radio, turn off the DVD player, and use it as a time to connect with your kids, you may find yourself wishing for more (maybe not a twelve-hour drive, but you get the idea).

Drivetime is also a non-threatening way to spend time with your kids. You can avoid eye contact—which eliminates a lot of pressure—and use distractions to your advantage, allowing you to interact in a really casual way. The goal is to enter their world, talk about the stuff they love, letting your kids set the agenda for the conversation.

Don't think of the time you're driving in the car as wasted time until you get where you're going, but use these extra minutes as if they are a gift. Make them count by getting into their world. You can start by learning to ask good questions:

What movies do you want to see?
What was the best part of your day?
The worst?
What are you most looking forward to about where we are headed?
Did anything funny happen today?
Did anything surprising happen?

For some of us, a win is just turning off the DVD player, and turning down the sports radio. Even if magic doesn't happen during drive time, at least give it the space. And you'll likely find that some of your best conversations with your kids, and most revealing, will happen in the car.
